PROJECT

StudyBuddy – Web Development Project

Technologies Used: HTML, CSS

StudyBuddy is a web-based platform developed to promote collaborative learning among students. The main objective of the project is to enable users to interact with peers who are studying similar subjects, allowing them to share knowledge, ask questions, and support each other's learning journey. The website features a clean, user-friendly interface created using HTML and CSS, making navigation simple and intuitive. It serves as a space for academic discussions, resource sharing, and study group formation. Users can connect based on their interests or academic needs, encouraging a community-driven approach to education. This project highlights my skills in front-end web development and showcases my ability to design responsive and accessible web pages. StudyBuddy reflects my interest in building tools that enhance the learning experience and foster meaningful digital interaction among learners.
